BRYAN-WILSON SPLIT TO BE LASTING ONE

In the City of Cairo Whose People are Very Much Interested in Protection.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Friends of President Wilson who have been counting on the return to the fold of William Jennings Bryan are doomed to bitter disillusionment, it is learned from a close friend of the Commoner. The quarrel between the two is irreconcilable and will go on to the bitter end. The only thing not yet certain is whether Bryan will or will not carry an appeal to the people from the decision of the Democratic national convention, which, it is admitted, will probably be against him. One of the most remarkable features of the campaign against Wilson which his former secretary of state is organizing, is that it will have the vigorous support of Speaker Champ Clark and his friends. Rumors of this have been in circulation for some time, but have met with denial from the Clark forces and have been generally doubted because of the known bitterness the speaker has felt toward the man, who, he believes, prevented his nomination. According to the informant, however, the quarrel has been made up, and Bryan is preparing to do his best to repair at St. Louis the mistake which

WOMEN VOLUNTEERS.

In stress and trouble the women of a nation are always to be counted upon. In this country few of our women escape the weakening troubles peculiar to their sex.

Middle aged women about to experience that dreaded change of life, should profit by the experience of thousands of noble women who have gone through the same period with little or no pain, misery or discomfort.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is and has been for nearly 50 years just the medicine. It is not a secret prescription, for its ingredients are printed on the wrapper; it's a temperance medicine, a glyceric extract from roots.

Not only does it build up the entire system and make it strong and vigorous enough to withstand the organic disturbances, but it has a quieting effect upon the feminine organism.

Lynchburg, Va.—"I am glad to speak of Dr. Pierce's remedies in high terms. While I have not had any occasion to use 'Favorite Prescription' myself, I can tell of its benefit to my sister. She used it to build up after a nervous breakdown. She was well satisfied and it did all she could expect. I have been well pleased myself with Dr. Pierce's Pellets. They are fine. I am only too glad to recommend them."—Mrs. J. C. FRANKLIN, Cabell Street.

Hinton, W. Va.—"I am glad to recommend Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. For pills that cure indigestion, constipation and biliousness I have never found anything better. I cheerfully recommend them."—Miss J. W. Moss, 615 James Street.

Every woman should be careful that the liver is active and the poisons are not allowed to clog the system—get rid of these poisons by taking a vegetable laxative occasionally—such as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They do not gripe and will not harm the system.

he now believes he made at Baltimore. Speaker Clark's part in the fight will not be active, and it is understood that it does not include any interference with the president's plans for legislation this winter, to which the speaker is largely committed. When the gathering of forces for the convention begins, however, the speaker's influence will be felt, and it will be against the president. His friends are still powerful and many of his close advisers believe that the forces which came so near nominating him in 1912 can do so with the aid of the man who then blocked them.

One Cause Personal. The causes of the break between the president and his former premier are all known except one; that is personal, and results from the fact that neither Mr. Bryan nor his wife believe in second marriages. This, however, is of great weight in the quarrel, for the president's action has destroyed the confidence which the Commoner had felt in Mr. Wilson's sincerity and high motives, however they differed on practical questions. This feeling of distrust, when coupled with the entire disapproval of the president's recent public policies, in form.

Friends of the administration have been charging that the discomfiture which has overtaken the president's policies in Congress is due to the active opposition of Mr. Bryan. While it is yet too early to venture a prediction as to whether the president will have power enough to force through the policies he has proclaimed, it is already apparent that he will not have a solid party behind him on any one of them, and that so far they are not making any appreciable progress. It is not doubted that some measure of preparedness will be enacted, or that the tariff fence will hold tight, but beyond this no one will venture to predict any success for any of the administration policies except the relatively unimportant Philippines bill. Bryan men deny that they or their leader are in any way to blame for this state. They say that in accordance with the promise Bryan made to Wilson when he left the cabinet he has not worked actively in opposition to the White House. The only trouble, according to the Bryan men, is that he has not helped.

Bryan's Aid in the Past. During the previous sessions of the Wilson administration it was Bryan far more than anyone else who drove through Congress the measures for which the administration has taken credit. He held together his own followers and swung them, often much against their own wishes, into line for the measures which the president desired. Bryan's real work was not in the state department, but as legislative general. The present situation, his friends declare, merely measures the extent to which he has been responsible for such success in Congress as Mr. Wilson has won. Wilson's own powers of leadership, they say, are now about to have their real test, and they predict that the result will not help the president when the campaign opens.

The question that is most seriously worrying the administration leaders is just how far Mr. Bryan will carry his fight. They have expected ever since the first signs of the break appeared, that he would do all that he has so far done, and are not surprised at the vigor of his opposition, though disappointed to find how powerful he is. It is evidence that Mr. Bryan is preparing for a real fight at the convention where Wilson's backers had expected victory almost without a fight that is causing alarm.

Wilson men do not believe that Bryan can win the nomination of any other man, but they are seriously alarmed lest he shall have enough strength to hold a third of the delegates, all that is necessary under the Democratic two-thirds rule to prevent the president's renomination. Even if Wilson should ultimately win, they fear that a long fight in the convention will seriously weaken him in the campaign, the result of which they admit is very doubtful.

There is a growing fear that Bryan will not rest satisfied that he has done his duty to his principles merely by making a losing fight in the convention. Wilson's friends reassure themselves with the recollection that Bryan stayed in the party during the Parker campaign, when his pet theories had been repudiated, and that he is thoroughly a party man. They believe, also, that the Republican stand will be so much more obnoxious to Bryan that he will support Wilson rather than divide the party and assure Republican success. But as the increasing evidences of his bitterness

"I DON'T SUFFER ANY MORE"

"Feel Like a New Person," says Mrs. Hamilton.

New Castle, Ind.—"From the time I was eleven years old until I was seventeen I suffered each month so I had to be in bed. I had headache, backache and such pains I would cramp double every month. I did not know what it was to be easy a minute. My health was all run down and the doctors did not do me any good. A neighbor told my mother about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it, and now I feel like a new person. I don't suffer any more and I am regular every month."—Mrs. HAZEL HAMILTON, 822 South 15th St.

When a remedy has lived for forty years, steadily growing in popularity and influence, and thousands upon thousands of women declare they owe their health to it, it is not reasonable to believe that it is an article of great merit?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

toward the president appear, the latter's friends are less and less confident that Bryan will accept defeat and stay inside the lines.

In any case the Wilsonites have abandoned any hope of effective support from Bryan. With the Republican and Progressive reunited, the most optimistic Democrats admit that the fight will be close, and each new defection or weakness in the party line-up is increasingly serious. Even if Bryan stays on the reservation, the vigorous opposition he has already shown and the still more vigorous fight which is in prospect will rob whatever nominal support he might give to the nominee of the convention.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—It is only a short step from the hootchie-koochie to symbolic art. Gara Zora has brought to Broadway India's greatest symbolic dances. A reporter got into Zora and she spoke good English which she admitted she had learned in the New York public schools.

And then the interpreter came—a middle aged woman. She said the princess had just arrived from the Orient and knew very little English. As a child, she cooed "Gara Zora" to interpret all the symbolic rites and she is revealing her art to America. Then Zora went to the stage and her clothing consisted mostly of electrical effects.

She danced—according to the program—the "nymph of the waves" and "the death of the leaves" and it was about the best hootchie-koochie dancing Broadway has seen in a long time. When she came off the reporter said so too.

"I thought you'd guess it," smiled Zora. "I've been doing the hootchie-koochie in burlesque shows for years but this is my first chance at art. Art's a wonderful thing, isn't it?"

When John J. McGraw was running a pool room in the Marbidge building opposite the McAlpin hotel he had a customer who was quite keen on sighting the cue ball. Then he would twist his body around like a contortionist to get the proper "English."

It was a summer day and the player in his shirt sleeves was facing a hard shot. He began to twist and sight around until suddenly he unbalanced and fell out the second story window.

The other patrons put their hands to their eyes and moaned. They expected to hear an ambulance race up to the building shortly. Finally one brave soul tipped-toed to the window and looked down. As he did so there was a sound of some one running up the stairs. The patron had his cue in his hand. "Did I make that shot?" he roared. "Did I make it?"

Eddie Wallace Dunn dropped into one of those serve yourself white tiled cafeterias the other noon for a quick bite. He selected a piece of pie carried it to his place and then remembered he wanted coffee. As he was bringing the coffee back he noticed that a stranger was occupying his chair.

"Beg your pardon," he said, "but this is my chair."

"How do you know it is your chair?" said the man surlily.

"I can prove it by your trousers."

"What do you mean—prove it by my trousers?"

"Well, y—z are sitting on my pie."

In the old days on the Bowery there was a rough-necked, beetle-browed "bouncer" for those who gave back talk in the dance halls. Dancing has gone through a refining process but in all the refinement that has come to the dancers there must still be a "bouncer" although now the position is filled by a soft spoken woman of education and refinement. They are called hostesses and the dancers are under their management. They act as a buffer between the hooligan and those who belong. If a young blood from the East Side blows into the dancer with his gum chewing lady friend the hostess must use diplomacy in seeing that they leave and that do not dance. Also

C. L. HOLDEN OF LOST CREEK IS FULL OF PRAISE

Says Nerv-Worth Lessened His Stomach Trouble of 25 Years' Standing.

The latest endorsement of this great nerve tonic received at Burke's drug store, where the tonic is sold exclusively in Clarksburg, came from Mr. Holden, who, after declaring that he had suffered with sour stomach "for 25 years," added: "I have tried about all the medicines I have ever heard of and a good many doctors and could get nothing that would stop that sourness till I got your Nerv-Worth."

Mr. Holden continued to say that when he had taken a half a bottle of Nerv-Worth the sourness was almost taken away. "Can eat most anything I want now," he adds. "My stomach was as sour as vinegar and I would have to vomit it up until I began to take Nerv-Worth. I recommend Nerv-Worth to my friends and to all sufferers."

These are words used by Mr. Holden over his own signature. Note the fact that less than a bottle of Nerv-Worth began the work of banishing stomach troubles that had lasted for a quarter of a century.

Your dollar back at Burke's if Nerv-Worth fails to help your nervous ills. And remember that Nerv-Worth is good for sick and nervous headache, pains in head, back, side and chest, for indigestion, nervousness and for run-down conditions in general.—Advertisement.
